Strengthening our foundation, building on our success!
DIFFERENTIATION
LITERACY
Conferring is genuine, intentional conversation that allows students to build their confidence and identity as readers and writers.
Engage in cycles of feedback, including individual and peer conferences, enabling students to safely take literary risks to voice their thoughts and ideas.
CREATING THINKERS and LEARNERS
Mathematical knowledge emerges in a community of activity, discourse, and reflection.
Create and facilitate learning experiences, within a math workshop, that allow students to construct and negotiate deep conceptual understanding, as well as develop fluency with numbers.
SOCIAL and EMOTIONAL LEARNING
Children need opportunities to develop executive function and self-regulation skills.
Provide support and opportunities for children to practice executive function skills at school and at home.
